Debating Islam In The Jewish State: The Development Of Policy Toward Islamic Institutions In Israel

Alisa Rubin Peled

The Development of Policy Toward Islamic Institutions in Israel. This book covers Israel's policy towards Islamic institutions within its borders, 1948-2000. The development of policy toward Islamic institutions in Israel, by Alisa Rubin Peled, Albany: State University of New York Press, 1996. This book traces the development of policy toward Islamic institutions in Israel, focusing on the historical development of policies related to Islamic institutions, including the status of Islamic institutions and citizens in the Israeli state. The book examines the role of declassified documents from Israeli archives, academic institutions in Israel, or have any objections triggered a debate over the history of development of the status of Islamic institutions in Israel. The book provides a comprehensive analysis of the development of policy toward Islamic institutions in Israel, covering the years from 1948 to 2000.