Rural Housing In Ulster In The Mid-nineteenth Century

Alan Gailey

To verify accuracy Rural Housing in Ulster in the Mid-nineteenth Century The early Ulster immigrants and their descendants at first usually referred to themselves. However, beginning in the early 19th century, many Irish migrated. During the mid-1900s Irish immigration to the United States began to decrease over 60% of all Irish settlers in the US being Catholics from rural areas of Ireland.
